

News Break Scavenger Hunt

Sunday's News Break challenges you to hunt through the Sunday, September 8, 2019 print replica of The Seattle Times to find answers to the following questions.

1. A friend offered to help her break into "academic writing." What is this lucrative industry in Kenya? (MAIN)
2. OSLO, Norway — For ____ years, geologists in Norway had urgently warned that a mountaintop called "Little Man" could collapse because of the corrosive effects of heavy rain, destroying huge swaths of the nearby town of Rauma. Then, last week, after the 16th warning and another evacuation, followed by grumbings of yet another false alarm, about 50,000 cubic meters of rock finally and thunderously collapsed. (MAIN)
3. If _____ is now the most profitable commodity of the 21st century, it is also fast becoming the one with the highest political and social risks. (NW SUNDAY)
4. The intertwined lives of beaver and salmon emerging here is one more sign that the ecosystem-scale restoration of the Elwha, with the world's largest-ever dam removal project, begun in 2011 and completed in 2014, is taking hold. (NW SUNDAY)
5. As part of the 1990 Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act, museums and federal agencies were mandated to do what? (NW SUNDAY)
6. _____ at Husky Stadium while the UW-Cal game was delayed because of severe weather in the first quarter. The game resumed at 10:30 p.m. (SPORTS)
7. As if highly paid Amazon employees needed another helping hand, some lenders are making it easier for the company's new tech hires to qualify for what? (BUSINESS)
8. The suburbs are back. For most of the past five years, homebuyers in the U.S. have flocked to vibrant sections of cities where they can walk to a grocery store, restaurants and shops. But new data from Seattle-based Redfin shows that soaring home prices are starting to pump the brakes on that trend. Why? (BUSINESS)
9. Sold to the highest bidder: one historic lighthouse sitting at the tip of Lake Superior's Wisconsin Point. The U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) auctioned off the red-roofed tower last week to Steven Broudy of California for $_____. (BUSINESS)
10. The traditional Mediterranean diet has a substantial body of research to support its healthfulness, but there's a new contender in town — the Nordic diet. What does it consist of? (JOBS)

News Break is posted to the Web on Monday. Please share this NIE News Break program with other teachers. To sign-up for the print replica for your class, please call 206/652-6290 or toll-free 1-888/775-2655. Copyright © 2019 The Seattle Times Company