News Break Scavenger Hunt

Sunday’s News Break challenges you to hunt through the Sunday, March 8, 2020 print replica of The Seattle Times to find answers to the following questions.

1. Testing for the novel coronavirus in the Seattle area will get a huge boost in the coming weeks as a project funded by ________________ and his foundation begins offering home-testing kits so people who fear they may be infected can swab their noses and send the samples back for analysis. (MAIN)

2. The statues on Easter Island have stood for centuries, facing inland to watch over a community that reveres them as memorials of their ancestors. Made of ________________, they have braved many challenges over the years: climate change, lichen growth, damage from livestock and the encroaching development of tourism. (MAIN)

3. Mexico’s women are going on strike. In what could be the boldest women’s rights action since the #MeToo campaign, many of Mexico’s 21 million registered female workers are expected to stay home from work or school Monday to protest what? (MAIN)

4. ________________ is among the few Native Americans competing in college athletics. Native Americans are the most under-represented demographic in the NCAA, accounting for just 0.4% of athletic scholarships, according to a 2018 report by the Institute for Diversity and Ethics in Sport at the University of Central Florida. (SPORTS)

5. When 57 mushers line up Sunday for the official start of the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, it will be the second smallest field in the past two decades. Only last year’s field of 52 was smaller.

   Interest in the world’s most famous sled-dog race, the Iditarod, has waned in recent years. Why? (SPORTS)

6. A few years ago, Amazon.com’s quick delivery team debated doing something radical for the e-commerce giant: asking shoppers to consider what? (BUSINESS)

7. Above all, ________________ is a mountain town with snowcapped peaks framing a lively Main Street. (THE MIX)

8. March is ________________, which always feels odd to me, because nutrition is important every single month and every single day. But here we are, it’s March, and this year’s theme is “Eat Right, Bite By Bite.” (THE MIX)

9. A place to ________________ is becoming an office wellness amenity, as employers begin to see sleeping on the job as a way to boost productivity, not a sign of laziness. (EXPLORE)

10. That was the official word from the far, far away galaxy known as the Big Apple, as Disney and Lucasfilm gathered journalists ahead of Toy Fair New York last month to show off their _______ _______ wares of all forms — from pajamas to PopSockets — that will soon finally be in Star Wars fans’ eagerly outreached palms. (EXPLORE)
